Inspiring Tomorrow's Dairy Leaders Today

There's one event that brings together the best and the brightest collegiate students who are diligently studying for a career in the dairy industry: The North American Intercollegiate Dairy Challenge. NAIDC is a unique two-day competition among teams representing North American universities' dairy science programs. Dairy Challenge is an interactive competition of teams from North America dairy science programs. For 16 years, Dairy Challenge has connected students and universities with producers and industry professionals in a forum that's educational and fun.
